

The Continuum and Kinds Of Community Linkages and Partnerships

1. Basic referrals of clients for other services.
2. Joint case planning with other service providers, the family, and the family's network. This may require joint training.
3. Joint program development to create needed new programs and services.
4. Organizational infrastructure—written agreements for information sharing, joint management information systems, staff liaison positions, locating staff in another agency, etc.
5. Creating a community collaborative for child protection.
6. A state-level collaborative or Cabinet for Children, Youth, and Families Services.
